You can hear the playing sound from the phone (voice calling) More about games and games for phone If you've been in the business, you probably heard a lot of hype about the "robot revolution". But what do we mean by a robot revolution? Basically, it refers to the fact that in the future (not that far into the future) a lot of the work will be done by robots, which are controlled by computer and software. In the real world, the robot revolution has been slow. Think about it: we're still using thousands of employees to move our goods around from point A to point B. We're still using mechanical, manual components to assemble complex products. We still need a human to design, build and test a product before it reaches our hands. These are the jobs that are going to be automated in the future. We're actually seeing this today. For example, in the next few years, it's likely that most of the manufacturing industry will be automated.
