Short latency reflexes (SLRs) were studied in 10 patients with the long QT syndrome (LQTS) using somatosensory evoked potential (SEP) and Hoffmann-reflex techniques. No significant difference was found between the mean latencies of N10, N20 and P15 components of SEPs in the LQTS and the control group. The mean peak latencies of Hoffmann-reflexes were shortened to all of the intensities tested in the LQTS group compared with the control group. However, the mean amplitudes of Hoffmann-reflexes were not significantly different between the LQTS and the control group. Copyright (c) 2010-2020 Contributors to the openHAB project * * See the NOTICE file(s) distributed with this work for additional * information. * * This program and the accompanying materials are made available under the * terms of the Eclipse Public License 2.0 which is available at * * * SPDX-License-Identifier: EPL-2.0 */ package org.openhab.binding.isenseo.internal.boot; import org.openhab.binding.isenseo.internal.IsenseoBindingConstants; import org.openhab.binding.isenseo.internal.IsenseoCoreBindingProvider; import org.openhab.binding.isenseo.internal.IsenseoCoreBindingProviderPortable; import org.openhab.binding.isenseo.internal.lib.ResponseHandlerPort
